DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-5, 6, 7 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the patent issued to Bloom et al (PN. 5,982,553) in view of the patent issued to Kajiki (PN. 5,694,235).

Bloom et al teaches an image display system (30, Figure 4) wherein the system is comprised of a light source having LEDs (32R, 32G, 32B) for generating laser beams having wavelengths in predetermined ranges of red, green and blue color. The laser beams illuminate a Grating Light Valve (10), which is an one-dimensional spatial light modulator, for modulating the laser beams. The modulated laser beams are then scanned by a scanning mirror (58) to the location of an observer (64) for displaying an image, (please see Figure 4, and columns 7-9).

This reference has met all the limitations of the claims with the exception that it does not teach explicitly that the image display system is a stereoscopic image display system. Kajiki in the same field of endeavor teaches a three-dimensional image reproducing system that is comprised of modulator for modulating the light from light sources and scanning system for directing the modulated image light to produce stereoscopic image (15, Figure 9). It would then have been obvious to one skilled in the art to apply the teachings of Kajiki to modify the image display system of Bloom et al to make it capable of displaying stereoscopic images for the benefit of three-dimensional effect to the image displayed.

With regard to claim 2, Bloom et al teaches that the direction of scanned light is in 45 degrees with respect to the array direction of the Grating Light Valve. Although these references do not teach explicitly that the scanning direction is perpendicular to the array direction such variation is considered to be an obvious matters of design choice to one skilled in the art for the benefit of making the display system to have different arrangement that may be suited for different viewing purpose.

With regard to claims 4 and 6, Bloom et al does not teach explicitly to include a diffusion panel. Kajiki teaches to use a diffusion plate, (which known in the art having the ability of making the light have more uniformly distributed intensity), for reproducing and displaying the stereoscopic image to the observer. It would then have been obvious to one skilled in the art to apply the teachings of Kajiki to modify the image display system of Bloom et al for the benefit of providing more uniformly distributed image to the observer.

With regard to claim 6, Bloom et al teaches to use a lens (50, Figure 4) to collimate the modulated light from the Grating Light Valve. Bloom et al also teaches that an image forming lens such as (53 or 55) may be used to focus the image light, (please see Figures 6 and 7). It is known in the art that an image focusing lens has the inherent property of performing Fourier transformation.
